ONLY ROBBER BANDS
Are Any More to be Reckoned
With in the Philippines.

AMERICAN TROOPS AMPLE
To Control the Situation—
Early Peace Predicted.

San Francisco, May 15.—Brigadier General Theo. Schwan, who has been General Onis' chief of staff in the Philippines for nearly a year, has arrived here from Manila on the transport Thomas. He will remain in San Francisco for a short time awaiting orders from Washington assigning him to duty elsewhere. Concerning the situation in the Philippines, General Schwan is hopeful that it will not be many months before affairs will have naturally adjusted themselves to the American control and the robber gangs will have been stamped out.

"The robber bands," said General Schwan, "are incited by native politicians who impose upon the credulity of the common herd. No people are so credulous as the lower class of Filipinos. These leaders have been inciting the exiles to continue on the warpath, assuring them that an American election was soon coming and McKinley would be defeated and the Americans withdrawn from the Philippines."

"There are about 60,000 troops in the Philippines now. That number is ample for the situation. The islands are well covered with American troops, carefully distributed to all the strategic points and each garrison responsible for its own sphere of action. Many of the robber bands are armed principally with keene-edged bolos, the native weapon. They pillage small towns and frequently cut the throats of natives who have been friendly to Americans. By degrees, however, the distributed garrisons are gaining the confidence of the townspeople where they are stationed, and already have succeeded in some cases in getting native help to guide them to the robbers. "After the wet season and after the national elections in this country, the pacification of the Philippines will naturally complete itself. The natives are quickly acquiring the English language and even the troublesome class send children to school to learn English. We are in complete military possession of the islands. The only problem is the civil government of the islands, and that will come as a natural consequence of the others. In a year from now there will not be any need for nearly so many men as we have there now."

Over ten thousand lives have been lost in the African war. Two times as many die every year as a result of impure blood, which could be saved by using Beggs' Blood Purifier. "It's the best spring medicine ever made."—Fred Ackerman, Moberly, Mo.

SIEGE STORY FROM CATUBIG.
MacArthur Confirms the Unofficial Accounts of That Gory Event.

Washington, May 15.—The officials of the war department, after waiting for nearly a week to hear something from General MacArthur at Manila, confirmation of the press report of the bloody engagement at Catubig, which resulted in the heaviest loss of life the American army has sustained in any one engagement in the Philippines, yesterday cabled General MacArthur a request for information. The answer was received today, confirming the press reports and adding some interesting details. General MacArthur transmitted a report from Henry T. Allen, a major of the Forty-third volunteers, who commanded the United States forces on the island of Samar. It appears that the first force was met among several points on Samar, and while details are still lacking, it is believed that this particular force which was besieged at Catubig was commanded, not by a commissioned officer but by a sergeant, either George or Hall, both of whom were killed. Catubig, where the engagement occurred, is a small town of nearly 2,000 inhabitants. General MacArthur's cablegram is as follows:

"Manila, May 15.—With reference to your telegram of 14th. The removed engagement in Samar reported cablegram of General Otis, May 4, has been confirmed by reports recently received from Henry T. Allen, Forty-third regiment, United States volunteer infantry, commanding Samar Island. That detachment of 21 men stationed at Catubig were attacked April 15, by 60 men with 200 rifles and one cannon. Our men quartered in convent, which was fired next day by burning hemp. A detachment attempt to escape by river. Men getting into a boat were killed; remaining men interred themselves near river and held out two days longer, forcing adverse circumstances until rescued by Lieutenant Sawney and ten men. Over 20 of attacking party (many of them are reported to have come from Luzon Island) reported killed and many wounded. Lieutenant Sawney reports streets covered with dead insurgents."

TWO NEW YORKERS.
One Gives the Other a Handy Lift.

Mr. E. C. Hazard, one of the oldest and best known wholesale grocers in New York, has for many years given his attention to the preparation of fine food delicacies. He has a farm and expert station down on Staten Island, where the famous Shrewsbury Ketchup, Burnt Onion Sauce, Shrewsbury Mushrooms and other delicacies are prepared in a most skillful manner.

One evening last autumn while on his way home, Mr. H. sat with one of the officials of the N. J. C. railroad, who seemed to be living with one foot in the grave, and the other in the land of the living. He was so ill that he could not get up, and it seemed only a question of a few weeks, at most, when death would come.

Mr. Hazard insisted upon taking the gentleman to his home and giving him a package of Grape-Nuts breakfast food, which he manufactured by the Postum Cereal Co. at the pure food factories at Battle Creek, Mich., a food which Mr. Hazard had been using at his own table for a long time, greatly to his benefit.

He told the gentleman that he would get well in a few weeks by the use of perfectly prepared food of this sort, and would never forget the day when he first tried Grape-Nuts. The prediction came true; the official is not only alive today, but is in better health than he has experienced for many years, all of which he attributes to the use of Grape-Nuts and the advice of Mr. Hazard.

There are two reasons for this: In the first place, Grape-Nuts are made from certain selected portions of wheat and barley that contain phosphate of potash and albumen which nature uses in the human system to make up the gray matter in the brain and nerve centers throughout the body.

The nervous system directly controls the digestive machinery, and the brain controls the working and money making power. Mr. Hazard knows this, and his knowledge of foods and from his own experience with Grape-Nuts. Therefore when he took the railway official in charge he knew exactly what he was doing, and he proved the correctness of his knowledge.

POORER THAN FAMINE
Though Fewer are Starving

THEY GET JUST AS HUNGRY
Scenes in the Hurricane-Devastated Coffee Region.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)
San Juan de Porto Rico, May 15.—William R. Corwine of the Merchant's association of New York, has been in Porto Rico for several weeks to thoroughly investigate the existing conditions and to use his judgment in recommending the Central Porto Rican relief committee how its surplus of $20,000 could best be spent. After a few days in this city he visited Mayaguez, Ponce, Yaguey, Arroyo, Guayama, Coabaco, Cayey, Alcala, Caguas and intermediate towns. He traveled on horseback into the heart of the country devastated by the hurricane of August last. His report to the committee will recommend that a large part of the $20,000 be expended for an orphan asylum at Ponce, the balance to be proportionately distributed among the hospitals of the various towns and to the toward helping the destitute in the way of providing proper cooking utensils, etc.

Ponce was selected by Mr. Corwine as the site for the proposed orphan asylum because of the terrible havoc wrought by the hurricane in the vicinity of the city and in Ponce itself. Damage done by the storm on the southern side of the island was greater elsewhere. The heart of the great storm swept over the district, and the coffee plantations, which gave employment to thousands of persons, were destroyed. As a consequence many of the people have died of starvation through want of employment. In Ponce the number that met death from the hurricane and from the flood which followed far exceed that of other districts, therefore the number of children without parents is greater. Through the associations formed by their homeless existence in the streets, these children are liable to grow up vicious. The establishment of an orphan asylum would tend to better the condition of the coming generation, would avoid sickness and would reduce the mortality which would otherwise follow. The rainy season is about due, and hundreds of poor, naked children are exposed to the unwholesome night air.

Mr. Corwine made a proposition to the municipal authorities of Ponce, and was assured by the mayor, Jose Guzman Renteria, that the matter would be favorably voted upon by the city council. The Central Porto Rican relief committee will erect an orphan asylum on ground to be donated by the city of Ponce. The municipality is to assume the financial responsibility of its maintenance and support. Mr. Corwine will recommend that the building be constructed as cheaply as possible, so as to accommodate a great number of children. The asylum as planned, will be capable of caring for from 20 to 40 children and will cost about $5,000, of which sum $3,000 probably will be expended for equipment. The Ponce branch of the Woman's Aid society and the Porto Rican Benevolent society have promised to lend their aid and influence. After providing for the asylum about $2,000 will remain on hand for distribution among the hospitals. The island's smaller towns are badly off financially—dozens have not a peso in their treasuries. Small amounts, says $20 here and $30 there, distributed among the smaller towns will accomplish a great deal toward replenishing the dispensaries. There are many towns without even a physician.

"The district around Yaguey," said Mr. Corwine to the correspondent of the Associated Press, "seems to have suffered the most from the hurricane, and the people there exist among most deplorable surroundings. That town is the center of the coffee district, and even now, nine months after the hurricane, the plantations are not cleared up. I saw trees which had been torn up by the roots, still lying on the ground, covering crushed coffee trees. When I visited the island a few months before the war, I found the coffee industry badly off, but now it is worse, because the plants are destroyed. This condition has driven thousands of persons out of the island. At Yaguey, I saw dozens camped in the open air, poor, thin, wretched, without strength enough even to rise up to look at a passing stranger, the women thin-limbed, with emaciated faces and hollow chests, the men too weak to work were wretched. A thousand pounds of relief supplies is being cooked by the authorities, not poor that they have no means of cooking the food themselves. The supply of meat of rice and beans served out to these half-starved people is doled out as if it were the most delicious product.

"When the whole, I find the commercial condition on a much firmer footing since my last visit a year ago. The cigar industry is on its feet again, and although the crop this year is short, thousands of tons will be carried on every northbound steamer for some months to come. That, however, seems very promising. The future for the fruit business in Porto Rico is bright. The Florida crop has been frost-bitten for five seasons. Fruit is unknown in Porto Rico, and her fruit capacity has never been tested. Fruits in Porto Rico have never been cultivated, but there has been absolutely no market. Europe was too far away, and fruit was barred by tariff from the United States. I can foresee a rush of fruit-growers to the island from the states within a few months. As no fruit is under cultivation the newcomers will have to start with the setting out of their plants and it will only be a matter of a few years when railroads will be built to connect interior points with seacoast towns. As soon as the fruit is ready for market a line of special fruit steamers will run to the island, and the trip can easily be made in three and a half days."

SENATOR BUTLER STANDS PAT
Washington, May 15.—Senator Butler, chairman of the national committee of the People's party, was asked today if it was true, as has been reported, that both Mr. Bryan and Mr. Towne had expressed a preference that the People's party national convention should not nominate a vice presidential candidate. He replied: "I have been told that, it is true, but it was the judgment of the convention that the best way to elect both of them was to nominate. It must be remembered that neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Towne is intimately acquainted with the present situation as to the popular vote of the country. Mr. Bryan could not be elected by disbanding or appearing to disband the organization of the People's party. To have done so would have lost him ten popular votes for every gold Democrat vote that he would have won back to him. In short, the convention did the thing that was necessary to be done to insure the election of Mr. Bryan."

Naval Scheme's Latest Stage.
Berlin, May 15.—The budget committee of the Reichstag concluded the debate of the naval bill today, after deciding that the measure is to come in force simultaneously with the amendments to the stamp law and the customs tariff providing the means for the increased naval expenditures. The committee also resolved that should the naval estimates exceed the $4,000,000 mark thus provided, the excess must not be covered by indirect taxation.
